Pages stolen for use in Hofmann forgery

The paper used by Mark Hofmann to create his most convincing and expensive forgery was stolen from a book in BYU's Harold B. Lee Library, according to transcripts of interviews with Hofmann released Friday.

"The Oath of a Freeman," once thought to be the earliest printed document in the United States, was created by Hofmann using a quill pen and sheet of paper torn out of a 17th-century Latin book from the fourth floor of the library. In addition, Hofmann said he used a sheet from another BYU-owned book to carbonize the ink, making it appear old.

"The paper ... would have definitely come from the BYU library," Hofmann said in the transcripts. "The paper did not have printing on it, which I guess they'll be happy to hear."

Hofmann's "Oath" had been authenticated by the Library of Congress and was valued at $1.5 million. Hofmann had planned to sell the document for $1 million, but it was the delay in the sale that Hofmann said led him to kill two people in Salt Lake City October 15, 1985.

Eleven interviews, brought about by a controversial plea bargain, deal largely with the forgery of 17 documents with which Hofmann swindled individuals and organizations for thousands of dollars.

At a press conference Friday, Salt Lake County Deputy Attorney Robert Stott said the transcripts represented a landmark for future forgery detection.

"If this had gone to trial we would not have cleared up one of these documents," Stott said.

"We would have had to have 17 different trials and we would have never done that."

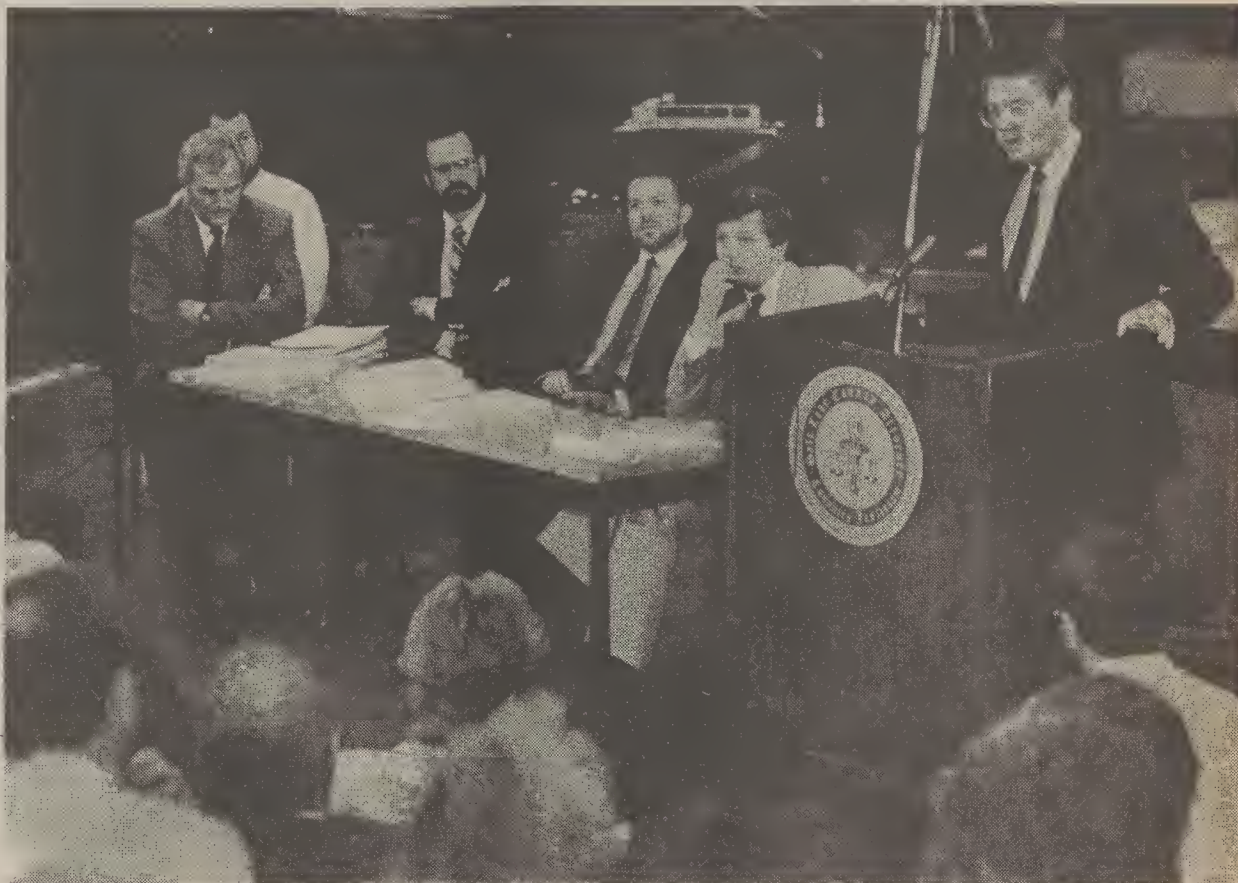

However, not all county officials are happy with the result of the Hofmann interviews. "We did not learn one thing we didn't already know about before the plea bargain," said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward. "These transcripts are a friendly interview instead of an interrogation."

Hayward said the terms of a plea bargain are usually carried out before the official acceptance of the agreement. In the Hoffman case, he said, Hofmann didn't have to talk until after the plea bargain had been entered in court. "What does he have to gain by talking and what can we do if he doesn't?" Hayward said.

Stott argued that all parties involved with the investigation were told about the plea bargain, and he said they all approved and knew what was going on. Hayward said he was told of the plea bargain, but would not comment about whether he approved it.

Hofmann's refusal to discuss the bombings of Kathleen Sheets and Steven F. Christensen with police detectives has angered police officials, who believe the murders have been made the secondary crime in the Hofmann case. "This man is a murderer, we cannot forget that," Hayward said.

The only information on the bombings included in the transcripts are fourteen pages of notes taken by Stott and David Biggs, also a Salt Lake County deputy attorney. See HOFMANN on page 8

Hearings end; questions stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's daytime summer fireworks, the Iran-Contra hearings, came to a quiet end after a 41-day run Monday, with none of the 29 witnesses having tied President Reagan directly to the use of arms-sales profits for the guerrillas fighting in Nicaragua.

"The president has indeed been telling the truth," said Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., the vice chairman of the House committee. However, Republicans joined Democrats in a final round of speeches denouncing the secrecy and deception that brought the Reagan administration its greatest embarrassment.

"The story has now been told," said Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate committee. He called it a chilling story of a flawed policy kept alive by a secret White House junta despite repeated warnings and signs of failure."

Reagan will deliver a speech on the Iran-Contra affair next week, on a day still unspecified, but spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president does not intend to "go into every detail" about the testimony.

The rare collaboration of committees from the House and Senate will continue the rest of the month. First, they will hear testimony from three CIA officials behind closed doors, then they will draft a report on the affair.

"Ninety-eight percent of the major questions have been answered," Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said of the public hearings. "You'll be surprised how short the list is of facts that remain in dispute" when the committee's final report is issued

"I'm not sure we're going to get the full story. There are some loose ends we'll probably never know."

Rep. William Broomfield

next month, said Rudman.

Eventually the rest of the questions may be resolved in court, where Lawrence Walsh, the government's independent counsel, is expected to seek criminal prosecutions of some figures in the affair. Nine of the public witnesses at the hearings testified under grants of immunity, meaning their words cannot be used against them in a future prosecution.

While there were extraordinary revelations from some of the key witnesses in the nationally televised hearings the basic story of the complicated affair remained unchanged after the hearings began on May 5:

Arms had been supplied to Iran — with Reagan's belated assent — in hopes of bettering relations and obtaining that country's help in gaining the release of American hostages held in Lebanon; profits were made on the sale by private citizens recruited by North; without the president's knowledge a portion of those profits went to buy weapons for the rebels fighting Nicaragua's communist government.

"There is disbelief in a lot of people's minds about what we've heard," acknowledged Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va. "But I think in large measure we've put the pieces of the puzzle together. The American people can now judge, and we can take appropriate measures."

"I'm not sure we're going to get the full story," added Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich. "There are some loose ends we'll probably never know. But we've got a better understanding of what happened. That's the best we can say about it."

Strict security accompanies pilgrims

Saudis watch Iranians as Moslems seek Mecca

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Iranians joined 2 million other Moslems in a pilgrimage procession outside the holy city of Mecca, watched by armed Saudi police flanking the columns and helicopters hovering above.

An anti-American demonstration by Iranian pilgrims in Mecca last Friday led to clashes with Saudi riot police in which at least 402 people were killed, 75 of them Iranians. Hundreds were injured.

Saudi news media portrayed some Iranian pilgrims as terrorists. Iran vowed to overthrow the Saudi ruling family and seize its vast oil wealth.

The Mecca clashes were widely viewed in the region as a manifestation of Arab-Persian jealousies and the divisions of Islam.

Nearly all Iranian Moslems belong to the Shiite minority. Shiites have been at odds for 1,300 years with the Sunni sect, which the Saudi royal family follows and which makes up 85 percent of the world's 850 million Moslems.

An estimated 2.1 million pilgrims, known as hajjis, moved in a smooth procession Monday in groups of 100,000 to the Plain of Arafat six miles from Mecca.

Police with rifles, on foot and in cars, flanked the 157,000 Iranians while military helicopters flew overhead, residents of the area reported. Police planned to guard the Iranians while the pilgrims camped overnight on the plain in preparation for the culmination Tuesday of the pilgrimage.

The Saudi newspaper Okaz, quoting officials it did not name, said Monday that Iran sent about 20,000 fanatical Revolutionary Guards and volunteers to Saudi Arabia as pilgrims.

Hajjis chanted "Labbaik Allahuma Labbaik," (God, here we are, responding to your summons) in unison as they walked in heat that reached 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

Men were clad in white seamless two-piece robes. Women wore head scarves and robes that reached the ground.

Pilgrims go to the Plain of Arafat, hallowed for its ties to Abraham, because of the injunction in the holy Koran: "And proclaim unto mankind the hajj. They will come unto thee on foot and on every lean camel, from every deep ravine."

At the culmination of the pilgrimage, each hajji "stones the devil," flinging seven pebbles at each of the three "devil pillars" on the plain. Pilgrims then return to Mecca, where they end the hajj.

Forums to discuss advisory council formation

By STEPHANIE BISHOP
Universe Staff Writer

student Advisory Council composed of student representatives will be discussed this week in two open forums held by the ASBYU sub-committee interested in changing the current student government.

In the current ASBYU student government system, there is no real avenue for students to express their views on certain issues affecting them, said John Coleman, chairman of the ASBYU restructuring committee.

Council of students

In the restructuring proposal, it was suggested this council be composed of students from campus wards and stakes, different college departments and other student-related groups.

"The ideas for the council are very flexible and we'll accept any input the students have about the council," said Susan White, a member of the Student Advisory Council sub-committee.

Various college departments have requested student input in the past, but there has never been a formal way of receiving their views.

Rob Miller, a past ASBYU president, formed a student advisory council in conjunction with the ASBYU president's council. The problem with this group was their lack of power, said White.

"This idea for a student council has been floating around for awhile," she said.

Council part of university

Other student-represented committees have been formed in the past also, but they have not fit into the university framework.

Because of this, the groups have not succeeded.

"In order for an organization such as a student advisory council to survive, it needs to be a definite part of the university system. ASBYU is a part of the system," said White.

The meeting Tuesday will be at noon in 230 SWKT and Thursday's meeting will be in 321 ELWC at 11 a.m.

For the past three weeks, the committee planning to restructure ASBYU has held open forums for students to add their opinions about the committee's proposal.

Last week's meetings dealt with the changes proposed for the executive branch of the ASBYU government.

Cory Eckel, the graduating class president, spoke of an innovative idea presented in the restructuring proposal.

Alumni board created

Eckel said the restructuring committee proposed the organization of an alumni board made up of past student body-presidents, BYU professors and leaders, and Provo and Orem community members.

The purpose of this board would be to advise new ASBYU presidents and leaders about some of the problems that they faced in previous years. This board would be an added advisory group for ASBYU, although it would have no power.

"The beauty of this group is the experienced information they could give to ASBYU to prevent problems and setbacks," said Coleman.

Open forums continue

After this week's meetings, the ASBYU restructuring open forums will continue in the fall semester in order to receive more student input on the proposal.

The proposal will not be voted on until students have had a chance to understand the document and the new ideas, said Coleman.

Commission gears up for the bicentennial

By JAMES A. DORSEY
Universe Staff Writer

When 55 state delegates assembled in Philadelphia in 1787, little did they know the fruit of their labors, the Constitution of the United States, would celebrate its 200th birthday with such a hoopla of fireworks, parades and souvenir trinkets.

Warren Burger, who resigned as chief justice of the United States to head the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, says he will do whatever necessary to educate the public about the Constitution.

"It takes only 23 minutes to read (the Constitution) aloud. Twelve if you read it fast," Burger said.

According to a recent Hearst Corporation survey, 80 percent of Americans think the Constitution states "all men are created equal," 64 percent say it established English as the official language of the United States and 49 percent think the president can suspend it.

Burger is disappointed with that showing, and said, "This should be the occasion for a civics lesson for everyone."

To help in this education effort, Congress has appropriated $25 million and Burger has raised nearly $10 million more from private donations.

The bicentennial commission is also allowing corporations to use its official logo for educational promotions.

American Express Co. is spending about $3 million to sponsor a tour of a copy of the Magna Carta, starting with the thirteen original states. And Polaroid Corp. is taking a $3 million program called "You and the Constitution" to American schools.

McDonalds Corp. is using the official logo on its tray liners. The Commission hopes people will ask, "Where does it go from here," and read the actual Constitution.

Burger says he wants to keep the ceremonies simple and dignified, such as a nationwide video network, allowing President Reagan to lead America's school children in the Pledge of Allegiance. This is scheduled to take place on Sept. 17, the anniversary of the Constitution's signing, and Burger's 80th birthday.

The commission is faced with the dilemma of attracting attention to the Constitution and educating people without turning the celebration into a circus.

According to Time magazine, Burger has turned down a request for a bicentennial brownie and constitutional hot dog. And there will be no Elvis Presley imitators in the official program.

Instead, Burger is opting for more subtle approaches, like printing 100 million miniature copies of the Constitution, which he hopes people will carry around in their pockets and read.

The bicentennial commission has no monopoly on "merchandising" the Constitution, however.

"Whenever there's a national festival, the hucksters are there. That's nothing new," said sociologist Herbert Gans.

Among the items being marketed are T-shirts, ashtrays, luggage and even "We the People" wine from a California bottler.

Hilton Hotels are placing copies of the Constitution next to Gideon Bibles in its rooms.

Philadelphia, the site of the Constitutional Convention, plans to attract millions of tourists before the celebration is over. The city has its own bicentennial committee, "We the People 200."

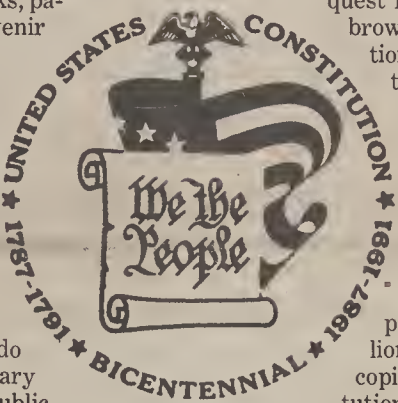

Philadelphia also plans to license a reproduction of the pen used by the signers of the Constitution, but says commercialism will be kept to a minimum. "We're not looking to junk it up. We don't have an official toilet seat, nor will we," said Fred Stein, programming director.

He said the committee has turned down a constitutional welcome mat. "We'd be wiping our feet on the Constitution," said Stein.

And how would the framers of the Constitution feel about the celebration surrounding its 200th anniversary?

Attorney Anthony Green, in an article in National Parks magazine, said, "Simply the fact that we have something to celebrate would have cheered the framers. They would be astonished that the document still stands with as few changes as have been made," he said.

Forum to discuss the arts

In today's Forum assembly, a BYU English professor and chairman of the English department will discuss the importance of the arts in education.

Professor William A. Wilson said courses in music, drama, dance, literature and visual arts play a central role in education.

"Back to Basics" advocates have attempted to cut such courses from the school curriculum. Courses that deal with the arts are usually among the first to be cut.

"The arts are not frills to be sacrificed in times of financial stress to more practical subject matter, but are, rather, imperatives of our human existence, pursuits we must follow in order to be fully human," said Wilson.

In 1960, Wilson began teaching at BYU and later taught at Indiana University, University of California — Los Angeles and Utah State University.

He received bachelor's and master's degrees in English from BYU in 1958 and 1962. In 1974, he earned a Ph.D. in folklore from Indiana University.

Wilson has researched and lectured on LDS, Western and Finnish folklore.

Wilson will be speaking in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC, at 11 a.m.

Iran threatens suicide attack on Navy

KUWAIT (AP) — Iran announced naval maneuvers in the narrow gulf gateway where it has attack boats and anti-ship missiles, and U.S. warships escorted a Kuwaiti tanker out of the Persian Gulf through the Strait of Hormuz on Monday.

Iran said the three days of exercises in the 44-mile-wide strait would be called "Martyrdom" and start at midnight Monday. It said they will show the readiness of thousands of volunteers for suicide attacks on the U.S. Navy, which Iran says helps Iraq in the 7-year-old gulf war.

It warned all ships and aircraft out of Iranian territorial waters in the gulf, the Strait of Hormuz and the Sea of Oman.

Iranian waters are difficult to define. Gulf shipping executives note that international law puts the territorial line 12 miles off a nation's coast, but also that the limit would apply to each Iranian island.

The reflagged 46,732-ton Kuwaiti tanker, Gas Prince, whose cargo of liquefied petroleum gas makes it a floating bomb, negotiated the strait into the Gulf of Oman with two Navy ships on guard. Its ultimate destination is Imari, Japan.

A Defense Department official in Washington, speaking privately, told reporters the Chinese-built Silkworm missiles Iran keeps on its side of Hormuz have a range of about 50 miles, and said of the convoy, "We've gotten word they're beyond the missile envelope."

Eleven arrested in freeway shootings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A motorcyclist who was shot at from a passing car led police to their 11th suspect in a wave of Southern California freeway shootings Monday, but another gunslinger got away after firing at two vehicles.

Four people have been killed and 11 others injured in nearly three dozen incidents reported since June 18. Eleven people have been arrested.

In the latest attack, Reunald Parker, 28, of North Hollywood told police he was driving his motorcycle near Hollywood Boulevard and Western Avenue about 3:30 a.m. Monday when a car made a U-turn in front of him.

When Parker tried to get the car's license number, the car followed him to an on-ramp of the Hollywood Freeway where the driver fired one shot that missed him, said Officer William Merchant of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Parker followed the car and notified police, who arrested Robert Salas, 21, for investigation of attempted murder, Merchant said.

Morton Thiokol to test reworked booster

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — Morton Thiokol Inc. plans to conduct the first major test of a fully redesigned space shuttle booster joint Tuesday, a company spokesman said.

The 1 p.m. test, the fifth in a series of about 10 simulations, is considered a preliminary step to the first full-scale test of the redesigned booster rocket scheduled for late August, said Morton Thiokol spokesman Rocky Raab.

"This is a major milestone, a major test," he said. "The purpose is to evaluate the performance of the new joint design under ignition pressure."

Engineers plan to fire 380 pounds of solid propellant to simulate launch conditions in the redesigned joint, which includes new insulation materials and a "capture feature" aimed at preventing the escape of superhot gases, Raab said Monday.

Leaking gases from a booster joint have been blamed for the Jan. 28, 1986, explosion of the space shuttle Challenger. The disaster killed Challenger's seven-member crew. The capture feature in the new design consists of a metal lip designed to prevent the joint from bulging under the pressure of burning gases during launch.

Cold front may relieve 17 day heat wave

The heat wave blamed for 80 deaths chased people from golf courses and kept power plants straining Monday for a 17th day in the eastern two-thirds of the nation, but a cold front over the northern Plains promised some relief later in the week.

"It's like living in the tropics, it's getting to be a way of life," said police dispatcher Nancy Bolyard in Moline, Ill., where the high Sunday was 101.

"Sometimes you feel like you're suffocating," complained John Morgan of Topeka, Kan.

Heat and high humidity also pushed back into parts of the Northeast after about a week's respite, with New York City hitting 90. Norfolk, Va., had a high of 97 degrees.

A heat alert urging people to take it easy and check on the elderly was extended to Tuesday in Alabama. And the Tennessee Valley Authority ordered its offices in seven states to turn off lights and turn down air conditioners to help ease an expected record demand for electricity.

UVCC pays $5,000 for logo it won't use

OREM, Utah (AP) — Utah Valley Community College has paid $5,000 for a logo design, but officials say it will never be used to represent the school that until recently was known as Utah Technical College.

UVCC President J. Marvin Higbee said the firm that designed the logo, Soter and Associates, "just didn't mix" with UVCC, so he ordered college officials to pay the firm and find someone else to design a logo for an additional $3,800.

College officials did not ask Greg Soter, of Soter and Associates, to improve his logo. In fact, they did not tell the firm the design would be discarded. Soter, meantime, said he was disappointed the logo, which had mountains rising from an open book, was not used.

"The logo just didn't speak to me. It didn't reach out and grab me," Higbee said. "I can't fault Soters, because they did the best job they could do. It just didn't work out."

The discarded logo had been approved by college officials, said Gilbert E. Cook, assistant to the president for college relations.

The forecast for today is fair and sunny. High temperatures will be in the upper 90's with lows in the low 60's.

Northwest Provo resident drowns in apartment pool

A 23-year-old Provo man drowned Saturday at an apartment complex swimming pool in Provo, according to Provo Police reports.

Cornelius Troy Begay, of 622 W. 1850 North, was found in a swimming pool at Branbury Park, a student apartment complex in northwest Provo. According to police reports, Begay was under full cardiac arrest when he arrived at Utah Valley Regional Medical Center at about 5:30 p.m. on Saturday. Efforts to revive him were unsuccessful, and he was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Provo police said Begay and an unidentified female juvenile companion had been consuming alcohol and swimming at the pool where Begay drowned. The woman noticed Begay was unconscious, and went for help.

Police said foul play is not suspected, and their investigation is continuing.

Violence on highways a cause for concern

By LORI LARSEN
Universe Staff Writer

Two recent highway shootings in Utah have raised concerns about the rising use of violence to settle traffic disputes, according to a Utah Highway Patrolman.

A semi-truck was struck by a bullet July 28 while passing through Utah County on interstate I-15. The incident was one of two shootings that have taken place on Utah's roads in the past two weeks.

The truck driver, Dennis John Ellingson of Colorado, was traveling south near Lehi Rolling Mills when a bullet passed through the window of his truck at 7 p.m., according to police reports. Authorities have no suspects in the case.

According to a spokesperson from the Utah Highway Patrol, authorities are not sure if the shooting was intentional, or if it was only children playing.

Sgt. Paul Mangelson of the UHP said the incident was "a result of what's been going on in California."

The other Utah shooting took place July 26 in Salt Lake City on Highland Drive. Salt Lake authorities are seeking two men, one of which shot at a Volkswagen driven by Sharon Seeley, 19, of Salt Lake City.

According to police reports, the bullet passed through the right rear of the car and lodged in the back seat. No one was injured in the shooting, which occurred after a confrontation between the passengers of the two cars.

There have been 24 shootings across the nation since the beginning of the year. Since June 18, there have been 14 reported highway shootings on California roads. Four people have been killed and two injured.

Sixty percent of the highway shootings took place on weekends when traffic is at its lightest, but virtually all shootings have centered on a traffic conflict, according to Edward Gomez, a southern section chief for the California Highway Patrol.

Gomez said 90 percent of the shootings occurred between 1 p.m. and 10 p.m., 90 percent involved a pistol and the gunmen were all men between the ages of 25-36.

Gomez said, "If we could give any single piece of advice — avoid the confrontation, do not allow it to escalate, do not pursue, and notify us about any information you may have."

As a result of the shootings, inquiries regarding bulletproof glass have increased from five calls per week to 50 calls per week, according to a California glass company.

Los Angeles Police Lt. Dan Cooke said, "It used to be honking the horn or making an obscene gesture when you were mad. Now it's gotten violent."

Although most of the shootings have occurred in California, various other cities have also reported traffic-related shootings over the past two years.

Police fear the shootings could cause a copycat trend. A police specialist for the National Institute of Justice, Ernie O'Boyle, said such crimes were specific to cities with congested freeways and warm climates, according to United Press International.

CONSTITUTION

Green said the framers enjoyed a good party, "with the possible exception of Madison, who was a notorious workaholic. After the framers signed the document, they all went to City Tavern for a celebration."

When the Constitution was ratified, "5,000 (people) marched in a parade and, reportedly, 45,000 spectators lined the streets," he said.

Green said commemorating the Constitution's anniversary will be different for each one of us.

He said, as a lawyer, "Watching a judge make a ruling, listening to a set of lawyers argue a point of law, hearing a jury render its verdict, that is the Constitution at work — and we mark that celebration every day."

Historian Stanley Katz said, "The bicentennial commission is into place mats. We ought to be studying the Constitution. That's what is unique about our society. It is what we're most admired for in the world."

And what gives promoters the right to sell Constitutional thermometers and comic books? Simple. The First Amendment.

Samuel Ray embraces his son at the funeral of his slain wife at Payson City Cemetery Thursday. Cindy Lynn Ray was found dead in New Mexico July 24 after her unborn infant had been cut from her abdomen. New Mexico officials have asked for a possible death sentence for the suspect.

Woman could face death penalty

By JAMES A. DORSEY
Universe Staff Writer

Officials in New Mexico said Monday they have asked a grand jury to return an indictment that will make the death penalty possible in the murder of a former BYU student who died when her unborn child was removed from her abdomen.

According to Steven Schiff, Albuquerque district attorney, Darci Kayleen Pierce was charged on July 27 with Cindy Lynn Giles Ray's murder and kidnapping. She is currently being held under a $500,000 bond.

Schiff said he has asked a grand jury to return an indictment charging Pierce with intentionally killing Ray in the course of a kidnapping. This charge would mean the death penalty could be sought if Pierce is convicted. The grand jury is scheduled to return its indictment on Friday.

Ray, 23, died when the baby she was carrying was removed from her body by the 19-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., woman.

More than 150 people gathered at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' Payson 9th Ward chapel Thursday to attend Ray's funeral. Ray's husband, Samuel Ray, was not scheduled to speak, but chose to address the congregation near the end of the services.

"A lot of people see the tragedy, and it is very tragic and not so nice. But there was one joyous sight — a child," he said.

Amelia, the baby removed from Cindy Ray, was released from the hospital to her father on July 27. Ray then took her and his 21/2-year-old son to Utah.

"I'll take my little kids and raise them the way their mommy wanted them to be raised," said Ray.

According to George Pearce, spokesperson for Kirkland Air Force Base in Albuquerque, where Ray was stationed, said Ray plans to be transferred to inactive duty with the Air National Guard in Utah so he can attend BYU.

Pearce said Ray, who has served four years of his six-year tour of duty, has been offered a humanitarian honorable discharge or re-assignment by the Air Force.

At the funeral, Ray said, "This is a difficult time. It comes as a shock for a lot of people. Cindy and I have had a lot of time to prepare for this. We knew that our time on this earth together would not be long."

Ray said his wife had achieved perfection in her life and was no longer needed here. "Cindy always aced her tests. This test didn't take her as long as it takes the rest of us," he said.

"The two important things I have learned in life are, first, to love the Lord, and second, to love every other person with whom we come into contact. Cindy was more like that than any other person I know," said Ray.

According to Albuquerque police, Pierce allegedly abducted Ray, who was eight and one-half months pregnant, outside a medical clinic in Kirkland, N.M., where Ray had gone for a prenatal visit.

Ray was then taken to a remote area east of Albuquerque in the Manzano Mountains, where she was strangled and was given a crude Caesarean, said police reports.

A Night at the Opera: BYU style

BYU is staging three different kinds of operas in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC, Thursday through Saturday.

By JENNIFER PIXTON
Universe Staff Writer

A night of comedy and entertainment lies ahead for those who attend the performance of the three mini operas put on by the 1987-88 BYU Opera.

The two-hour performances of "The Prodigal Son," "The Old Maid and the Thief," and "Signor Diluso," will run Thursday through Saturday in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC at 7:30 p.m.

"The Prodigal Son," written by Claude Debussy, is said to be the most famous of the three mini operas. Its setting is a primeval period that is beyond our time.

"The Prodigal Son" opens with a primitive forest that looks as though it has not been touched with an ax for over a hundred years.

"The original script was written in French and we will be performing it in its original language, whereas the other two operas will be performed in English," said Clayne Robison, director the the BYU Opera.

The half-hour opera is the literal story of a wayward son who leaves home and is welcomed back by his father and mother after a period of time. However, there is a much deeper meaning to the story, according to Robison.

"This opera is not just a story about a prodigal son leaving his home. It is also a story about us leaving our Heavenly Father's presence to come here to earth. When we come here to earth, we become prodigal sons and daughters in a large sense."

Robison said that like the prodigal son is welcomed back into his home by his father, we too will be welcomed back into our Heavenly Father's presence when we go home.

"This opera is transformation of reality as art should be," said Robison. "Through this transformation, we are able to better understand reality."

Dennis Todd will be playing the lead part of the prodigal son and the mother in "The Prodigal Son" will be played by Nina Warren and Helen McCurdy.

The stage director of "The Prodigal Son" will be Clayne Robison and the show will be conducted by Steve Green. Next, the BYU Opera will be switching to the 1940s scene with "The Old Maid and the Thief," written by American author Gian-Carlo Menotti.

The hour-long opera takes place in a middle-American town and has a reputation for being a favorite among audiences. "In the past ten years I have seen this opera performed three times by the BYU Opera because of its popularity," said Robison.

"The Old Maid and the Thief" is a story of an "old maid" who takes in a tramp, and a rumor spreads that the tramp is an escaped convict. However, the "old maid" tries to get the tramp to stay because she is in love with him.

Robison commented that the whole opera is a "play on words" because at the same time that there really is an "old maid," there is also a housemaid who is afraid of becoming an "old maid."

"The opera is a very poignant comedy and it has some very beautiful lyrics," he said.

Gregor McHardy and Michael Ensign will be playing the part of Bob, the tramp. The part of the old maid will be played by Anna Mooy and Colleen Butler. Leticia, the housemaid, will be played by Kath Van de Graaff and Rebecca Olpin.

"The Old Maid and the Thief" will be directed by Chris Heppinstall and conducted by Mark Taylor.

The final opera, which finishes the evening in good spirits will be "Signor Diluso," written by Thomas Pasatieri. Although this opera is only a half-hour long, it provides continual comedy and laughter.

Set in the Renaissance, the opera is the story of two lovers who see each other with different people and assume that the other is having an affair. The female lead, Celie, will be played by LaDawn Gardner and Laura Mosher. Leon, the male lead, will be played by Adam Russell.

Neal VanderPool will be the stage director for "Signor Diluso" and Steve Green will be the conductor.

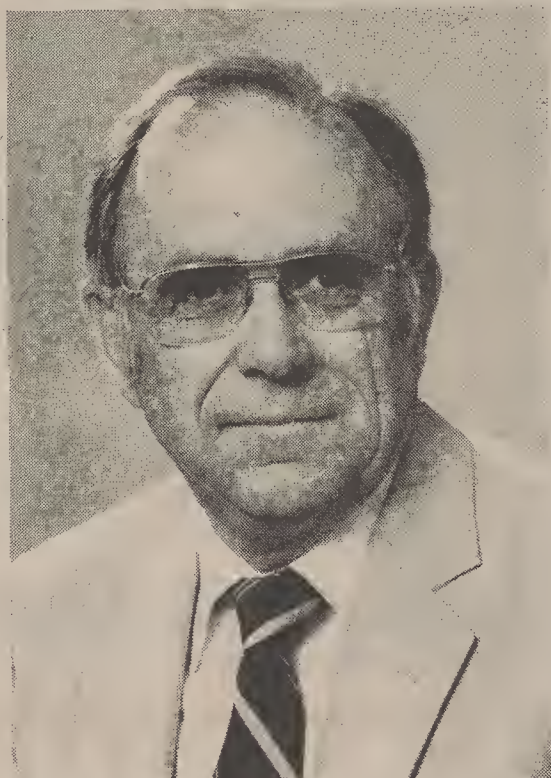

"This opera is not just a story about a prodigal son leaving his home. It is also a story about us leaving our Heavenly Father's presence."

"The Need beyond Necessity"

In recent years we have heard much about a return to basics in education, a return supposedly made more urgent by dwindling tax dollars and an inability to pay for courses and educational programs to which we have grown accustomed. Unfortunately, as "back to basics" advocates have attempted to cut nonessential courses from school curricula, they have sometimes been motivated more by expediency than by good sense and have unwisely argued for the elimination of those subjects that are most essential—the arts.

Music, dance, drama, literature, and the visual arts are not frills to be sacrificed in times of financial stress to more practical subject matter but are, rather, imperatives of our existence, pursuits we must follow in order to be fully human. If we expect our young people to grow up with a keen sense of their own humanity, a sympathetic awareness of the humanity of others, and a resolve to make their world a better place, then we must insist that the arts play a central role in their education.

You asked for it, you got it: Carriage Cove's fall/winter Rent is now $168 a month.

Carriage Cove Apartments were built out of a desire to be more responsive to the needs of the single student.

You wanted your own room. We built apartments with private bedrooms averaging 9' x 12', and with enormous amounts of storage space.

You wanted a jacuzzi. We liked the idea so much that we put in two.

You said we were too far from campus. We supplied one of Provo's first free shuttle buses.

So now you're saying that our rent is too high. Fine. We're cutting our prices by $10 a month, down to only $168.

Okay, is there anything else you need?

Knight, Buck expect contracts soon

By PAUL JENKINS
Universe Sports Writer and The Associated Press

BYU All-American defensive ends Shawn Knight and Jason Buck haven't agreed to a contract with their NFL teams yet, but both expect to sign an agreement with team management soon.

Buck, drafted 17th in the first round by the Cincinnati Bengals, said he is expecting a call any minute from the team with a figure he can agree upon. The Bengals last reported offer was a $1.425 million four-year pact, which is getting closer to the $1.55 million for four years Buck is seeking.

"I'm almost on terms with the Bengals," he said. "All I need is to hear the magic numbers I'm looking for. I'm excited to be a Bengal. I certainly have no quarrel with the coaches."

Buck is currently staying at his mother's home in St. Anthony, Idaho, and working out at Ricks College in nearby Rexburg.

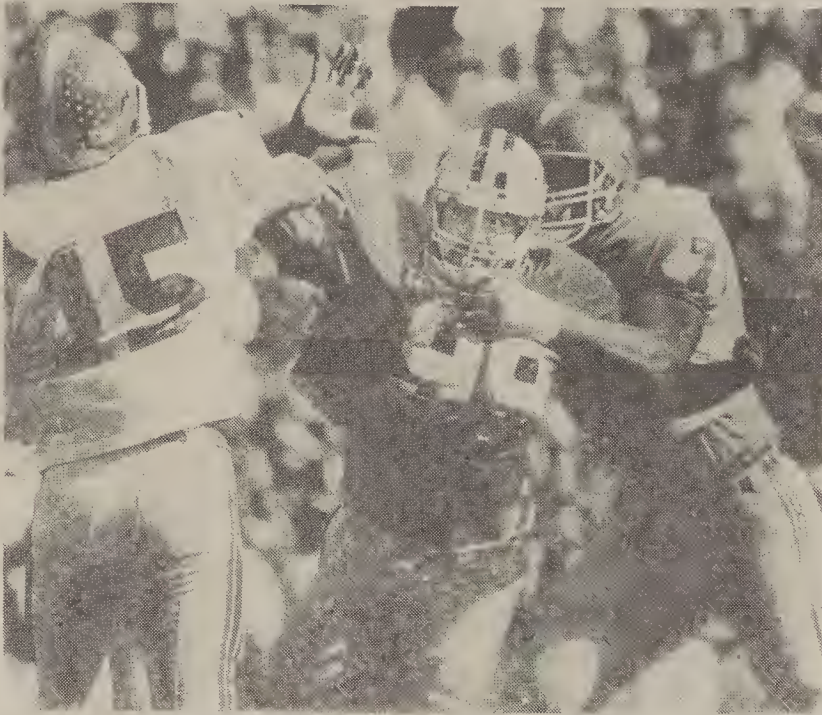

Knight, who was picked 11th by the New Orleans Saints in the first round, is having a harder time of it than Buck.

He can't participate in training camp until he is signed, and was dismissed from training camp last week by Head Coach Jim Mora for loitering on the sidelines.

Knight has since returned to his home in Sparks, Nevada, and is waiting for an offer from the Saints.

"New Orleans wanted to get all their veteran free agents signed before they worried about the rookies," he said. "Communication hasn't started yet, but all the veterans are signed, so hopefully I'm next."

Because serious talks haven't

started, neither Knight nor his agent has any idea what the Saints will offer.

Both Knight and Buck are represented by agent Lee Steinberg of Berkeley, Calif.

First-round draft pick Jim Harbaugh signed with the Chicago Bears on Monday, putting all five of the team's quarterbacks in training camp for the first time.

Harbaugh, whose four-year pact calls for the former Michigan star to be paid more than $1.3 million by the NFL team, joined Mike Tomczak and Doug Flutie in the battle for the No. 2 spot behind Jim McMahon. An injured Steve Fuller watched from the sidelines.

"I've been aching to get out there," said Harbaugh, who worked out at rookie camp in Lake Forest, Ill., last month but missed two days of practice at training camp here because he hadn't signed.

"We gave him more than we wanted, but it was less than they wanted," Bears president Mike McCaskey said of the contract terms.

Under terms of his agreement with the Bears, Harbaugh will donate $300 for every Bears' victory to anti-drug abuse programs, he said, adding he will also contribute an undisclosed sum of money to the University of Michigan.

Harbaugh, who set single-season school passing records for yardage and receptions at Michigan last season, said Wolverines Coach Bo Schembechler and Bears Coach Mike Ditka have a lot in common.

"They're both fiery competitors and winners," Harbaugh said.

Harbaugh's signing left veteran cornerback Mike Richardson and rookie defensive end Sean Smith as the only Bears who were unsigned and not in camp.

McMahon, who led the Bears to the Super Bowl title two seasons ago, is ahead of schedule in his recovery from shoulder surgery Dec. 12. Ditka has hopes he'll be ready to start in the first exhibition contest, Aug. 16 against the Dolphins in Miami.

So far in practice, Tomczak has looked sharper than Flutie, who quarterbacked the 27-13 loss to the Washington Redskins in the Bears' first playoff game last January.

Fuller was listed as physically unfit because of a shoulder injury suffered last week at Lake Forest. He'll return to the practice field when he passes his physical exam.

Training camp temperatures cooled to the mid 80s under cloudy skies Monday, in stark contrast to the 102-degree temperature Saturday when seven players suffered dehydration and heat exhaustion.

West Germans take Federation Cup

WEST VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Steffi Graf has staked her claim as the next dominant player in women's tennis.

Graf ripped Chris Evert 6-2, 6-1 in a singles match, then combined with Claudia Kohde-Kilsch for a 1-6, 7-5, 6-4 victory in the deciding doubles match Sunday to give West Germany its first Federation Cup championship with a come-from-behind 2-1 victory over the United States.

The defending champion Americans, minus injured Martina Navratilova, the world's top-ranked player, had cruised into the finals with four easy victories and jumped ahead in the first singles match as Pam Shriver downed Kohde-Kilsch 6-0, 7-6.

But Graf then took matters into her own hands.

"I was going for the shots in the singles," Graf said. "It was the best match I had the whole week."

Graf and Kohde-Kilsch were two games away from losing the doubles to Shriver and Evert, a last-minute replacement for Navratilova on the world's top doubles pairing, but refused to give up.

"It was a match made in heaven," said Shriver of the excitement generated by the three-set doubles. "It's possibly the most dramatic doubles match I've ever played, and I've played a lot of them."

The top-seeded Americans won the first set easily and took the first four games of the second set, but suddenly the momentum swung the other way.

Evert, who had only 30 minutes' rest after the singles, seemed to tire and Graf kept growing stronger, her blazing forehand complementing the reach of Kohde-Kilsch at the net.

"It's disappointing for the team to lose when you're within an inch of winning," Evert said. "Nobody choked, nobody got nervous. They just lifted their game a notch."

The West Germans rallied to win the second set, then broke serve in the seventh game of the final set to lead 4-3 and served out the match to claim their first championship in their fifth trip to the finals.

"Pam had a lot to do in the match because Chris is not a volleyer," said Kohde-Kilsch. "It was difficult for Chris and maybe that was the best she could play."

Shriver won all five of her singles matches in the eight-day competition and was her usually reliable self in doubles.

She got off to a fast start in her singles victory over Kohde-Kilsch, winning the first nine games of the match before Kohde-Kilsch settled her nerves, then taking the tie-breaker 7-5.

Graf, ranked second in the world, dominated her match with Evert by breaking service twice each set. It was Graf's third straight singles win over Evert after losing their first six meetings.

Kohde-Kilsch said it was not important to the West Germans that Navratilova was not here, but Graf admitted the absence of the world's No. 1-ranked player in both singles and doubles made it "maybe a little more difficult" for the Americans.

It was the first time the Federation Cup was played in Canada and record attendance was set when 61,309 spectators attended the matches at Holbyburn Country Club, about 4,000 more than at Prague last year.

The German team won $80,000 from the total prize pool of $325,000.

The document scandals involving confessed forger Mark Hofmann have not "rocked the foundations" of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, according to Church officials.

"Now that we know the truth about these documents, the events of the last two years have in no way undermined the traditional history of the Church," said Richard P. Lindsay, managing director of public communications for the LDS Church, in Friday's press conference.

"The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is in good health, robust and growing ever stronger in its mission," he said.

While friends and family thought Hofmann to be an active and believing member of the LDS Church, he said he had lost faith in the LDS Church "right around the age of 14."

By using his apparent good standing in the Church, Hofmann furthered his career of forgery and deceit, according to officials involved in the investigation.

According to Robert L. Stott, deputy Salt Lake County attorney, Hofmann denied the inspiration of Church officials. And Hofmann himself said, "I wasn't fearful of the Church inspiration detecting the forgery."

After meeting with Elders Dallin H. Oaks and Hugh W. Pinnock on October 15, 1985, the day of the two murders, Hofmann felt that if they were inspired men, they would have known he was a murderer.

While Lindsay said the Church will be making major changes to upgrade and further professionalize the Church History Department to keep such deception from happening again, the basic philosophy of trust will not change.

As one of Hofmann's many victims, the Church lost up to $57,000 in the document dealings, said Jerry P. Cahill, Church spokesperson. Other people have reportedly lost up to $500,000. David Biggs, deputy Salt Lake County attorney, said Hofmann seemed "just like one of us. He walked like us and talked like us." Hofmann did all of the acceptable things, and it was just such action that furthered his deception.

Although some people claim Hofmann's LDS Church membership facilitated his deceit within the Church, Lindsay said it merely allowed him greater access to Church officials.

BYU's Hofmann Symposium, scheduled for Thursday, will focus on the controversy of the last two years. The key address will be given by Elder Oaks of the Council of the Twelve. He will give further response from the Church will be addressed in Elder Oaks' presentation.

HOFMANN

during an interview with Hofmann prior to the plea bargain.

Hofmann said he didn't decide on his victims until the day of the bombings, and he said Christensen was an "honorable man who never said a bad thing about a person."

Christensen apparently was becoming suspicious of Hofmann and had to be killed when Hofmann was unable to produce the non-existent "McClellin Collection" by the October 15 deadline. The bomb at the Sheets' residence was intended to be a diversion to make investigators believe the bombs were connected to a failing business once owned by Christensen and Gary Sheets, Kathleen Sheets' husband.

Hofmann told investigators the third bomb that injured him October 16, 1985 was a suicide attempt. However, Biggs said they had evidence that Hofmann intended the bomb for someone else, and that pieces of parchment found in the exploded car would have been passed off by Hofmann as the destroyed McClellin Collection.

Salt Lake County Attorney David Yocum told reporters he is working with Hofmann's attorney, Ron Yengich, to set up future interviews with Hofmann about the homicides. Yocum said Hofmann has until January 1988 to comply with terms of the plea bargain that call for him to tell all the details of both the forgeries and murders.

The only retaliation available to county officials if Hofmann doesn't cooperate is to give a negative recommendation to the Board of Pardons at Hofmann's parole hearing in January. Yocum said further prosecution is not possible under the terms of the plea bargain.

BYU professor and researcher Richard L. Anderson said Monday he believes Hofmann's forgeries would have been discovered even if his bombings hadn't drawn attention to his fraud. "This would have straightened out in time," Anderson said. "Nobody can be that good for too long."

Anderson, who helped Salt Lake County establish the forgery charges against Hofmann, said Hofmann's work had telltale signs of forgery that would have eventually been detected. "Hofmann presented his works to historians who eye-balled the document, compared the handwriting and declared it authentic," said Anderson.

"The bombings simply crystalized a team of technologists who were able to uncover the inconsistencies in Hofmann's works. Historians are simply of a less scientific discipline and Hofmann knew what he was doing."

Technologists, working for the county attorney's office, detected cracking in the lettering on the Hofmann documents that would not have been there had the documents been authentic, Stott said. It was this discovery that enabled his office to build their case of forgery and murder against Hofmann, he said.

Anderson agrees with Stott that the transcripts, which give detailed accounts of Hofmann's forgery techniques, will be beneficial in the future.

"I think public interest in the long run was better served by the plea bargain. This has allowed us to clean up the past," he said. "I think gradually these interviews will be appreciated more. It will just take a while to fully realize the benefits."

Hofmann's nine-year career in documents fraud was facilitated not only by his forgery skills, but also his ability to "look someone in the eye and lie," according to the transcripts.
